

Making the Most of College

- + Join a club, organization, or sport. Get involved!*
- + Start a club, organization or start. Create opportunities for others to join you in what you like to do.*
- + Perform community service - either with CACL (Career and Community Learning) or with a class or your residence hall or club organization. You will learn and grow more than you can imagine by helping others.*
- + Go to speakers, art displays, theatre performances and other great offerings found free or at low cost for students.*
- + Explore Greensboro and all the city has to offer: art museum, baseball, vibrant downtown, service opportunities, theatre, shopping*
- + Study abroad during a semester. Exploring a new country and culture will be one of the single best life experiences you will have.*
- + Travel. While abroad, take time to explore other countries within striking distance.*
- + Do an internship. Do an internship in an area you think you might want to work - as a means to solidify your major choice or to confirm that you like working in that area. Get experience that will look great on your resume not matter what you major in.*
- + Take a leadership position on campus; be an officer for your club or organization, become a Resident Advisor, or be a part of the student government/senate.*
- + Talk to as many professors as you can. Get to know their interests. Find supporters, allies, and mentors among them who can assist you with your next step after college.*
- + Talk to as many students as you can. Find people who share common interests with you and build a network of friends and supporters.*
- + Don't be afraid to try something new. Never will there be a time in your life when experimenting and trying new things will be so easy and well encouraged.*
