2009 IMPACT Conference March 6-9

The IMPACT Conference is, historically, the largest convening in the country of campus community members involved in service, activism, politics, advocacy, and other socially responsible work across philosophical and ideological lines. One time during the year, college students, nonprofit professionals, campus administrators, and year of service members meet together to share their experiences, stories, & resources in their work for social change.

Let Your Life Speak: The Language of Passion and Purpose

"What are you majoring in?" and "What do you want to be when you grow up?" are the two questions all college students hear on a regular basis. In this interactive class, we will explore passion and purpose as they relate to career and vocation. "Who am I?" and "What's next?"

"Let Your Life Speak" is offered as a second Fast Track 2 session on Tuesday evenings from 6pm to 7:15pm in King 126 with Cheryl Bridges
Last Day to add a Fast Track 2 (March 20th)

The Standardized Tests: The Four Major Graduate School Admissions Tests:

Graduate Record Examinations (GRE)

Many university graduate departments require this test. The test includes the General Test of verbal, quantitative and analytic abilities as well as Subject Tests in 16 areas.

Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT)

At most business schools, GMAT scores weigh heavily in the admissions process. The GMAT measures general verbal, mathematical, and analytical writing skills associated with success in the first year of graduate study for the MBA degree.

Medical College Admission Test (MCAT)

A prerequisite of medical study, this is a 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ hour test covering biology, chemistry, physics, scientific problem solving, verbal reasoning, writing, reading, and quantitative analysis.

Law School Admission Test (LSAT)

In order to be accredited by the American Bar Association, law schools must require LSAT scores. The LSAT is a highly competitive half-day test covering reading comprehension, analytic reasoning, logical reasoning, and a 30-minute writing sample.
