Guilford College Magazine Summer 2004

Viewpoint 2

Cherie Edwards says The Early College at Guilford has provided an opportunity to expand her social skills and learn more about herself as a student and a person.

Striking a Sense of Balance 16

Steve Shapiro isn't the kind of teacher who throws out answers for students to memorize. Instead, he throws out questions and sends them off to find the answers themselves.

Weaving Together Town and Gown 20

As time transforms the urban world around it, the Guilford College community is held together by familial bond. There was a time when town and gown were inextricably interwoven.

Bright Minds Get an Early Start 24

The Early College at Guilford is a unique public-private partnership and one of a few in the nation that brings high school students onto a college campus full time.

The Last Word 40

Christopher Benfey '77, Mellon Professor of English at Mount Holyoke College, tells the Class of 2004 not to panic ... "and don't forget to live."
