Guilford College Magazine Winter 2004

Viewpoint 2

Ricky Gandhi '04 explains that diversity at Guilford lies in thought processes and lifestyles of individuals, and not just in race and color.

The Kaleidoscope of Guilford Students 16

Look inside the Guilford student population, shake it up a bit, and you will see the reflections of 2,101 students. No two alike. None conforming to a set pattern. But altogether, they make a striking picture.

Legends of the Arts: Albee, Burns, Poitier 22

Edward Albee, Ken Burns and Sidney Poitier sat elbow-to-elbow with Guilford students in the fall, offering an intimate visit with three men whose creative lives and personal convictions have wielded a significant influence on America's psyche.

Quaker Roots, Guilford Experience Influenced Christopher Benfey '77 26

"In the classroom, the Quaker ethos is a big part of how I teach: looking for that spark, that light in every student," says Benfey, a professor of English at Mount Holyoke and the guest speaker for Guilford's 167th commencement May 8.

The Last Word 36

Assistant Professor of Political Science Ken Gilmore says Guilford affords faculty the opportunity to pursue their calling to passionate teaching.
