Music by Austin Scott '43, Words by Russell Pope

Kindly light our founders kindled	Sacred mem'ries thru the archways	So our hearts and voices joining
Midst primeval oak and pine,	Of the swiftly passing years,	Echo Guilford's ancient fame.
Let thy radiance, truth revealing,	Still undimmed dear Alma Mater	Hallow'd be thine each endeavor.
Now upon our spirits shine.	Strengthen us, dispel our fears.	Hallow'd be fair Guilford's name.

Audience will please remain at their seats and refrain from blocking the aisles until all graduates have recessed.

Please join us for a reception on Founders Lawn immediately following the ceremony,

with music by Drew Hays - saxophone, Kahnnor Aplin '24 - saxophone,

ACADEMIC REGALIA

The custom of wearing caps, gowns, and hoods at college functions dates to the Middle Ages. In 1895, a commission of American educational institutions met to craft a uniform code of academic regalia that is still in use today. As a Quaker-founded institution, Guilford recognizes that some individuals may choose not to wear regalia as a matter of personal conscience.

The style and color of cap, gown, and hood indicate both the level of the wearer's education and his or her field of study. The bachelor's degree recipient wears an unadorned, straight gown with long, pointed sleeves. The master's degree recipient wears a similar robe with shorter, less full sleeves. The doctorate-level robe is most elaborate, with velvet panels adorning the gown's front and sleeves.

The hood's design is highly symbolic: The colors of its silk lining typically denote the institution granting the degree, its velvet border signifies the degree's field, and the overall size indicates the level of degree (bachelor, master or doctor). The field of learning, rather than the department that governed the major work, determines the color of the velvet trim color on the hood. For instance, a master of arts wears a hood trimmed with a white border, irrespective of their major field.

If more than one degree is held, the gown and hood reflect the highest degree attained. The colors indicative of the various fields of learning are as follows:

Anthropology - Dark Blue	Engineering - Orange	Music - Pink
Arts - White	English - White	Philosophy - Dark Blue
Business Administration - Light Brown	Fine Arts - Brown	Physical Education - Sage Green
Communication - Crimson	Government - Peacock Blue	Political Science - Dark Blue
Counseling & Guidance - Light Blue	History - White	Psychology - Gold
Dramatic Arts - Brown	Humanities - White	Science - Gold
Economics - Copper	Literature - White	Sociology - White
Education - Light Blue	Library Science - Lemon	Theology - Scarlet
	Mathematics - Gold

FEATURED SPEAKER AND HONORARY DEGREE RECIPIENT

Mandy K. Cohen, MD, MPH, H'23 is Executive Vice President and Chief Executive Officer of Aledade Care Solutions, a healthcare consulting firm. She was Secretary of the N.C. Department of Health and Human Services from 2017-21, appointed by Governor Roy Cooper.

As Secretary, Mandy worked tirelessly to improve the health, safety and well-being of all North Carolinians. She led the state's COVID-19 operational response, constructing the advanced infrastructure necessary to collect and analyze key data points to drive decision-making and developing state policy informing actions to slow the spread of the pandemic. Previously, she was Chief Operating Officer and Chief of Staff at the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services.

In February 2019, Modern Healthcare named Mandy one of the Top 25 Women Leaders in Healthcare. In September 2020, she was awarded the Leadership in Public Health Practice Award from Harvard University's T.H. Chan School of Public Health for her strong leadership during the COVID-19 pandemic response.

A graduate of Cornell University, Mandy received her medical degree from the Yale School of Medicine and a Master's in Public Health from the Harvard School of Public Health. She trained in internal medicine at Massachusetts General Hospital.

STUDENT SPEAKER

Larry McMillian '23 of Greensboro is a Cyber & Network Security major. An internship as a computer programmer with the National Security Agency – the branch of the Defense Department that operates the largest electronic surveillance capability in the world – resulted in a full-time job for Larry with the NSA upon graduation. Recipient of a J. Floyd "Pete" Moore '39 Scholarship at Guilford, he is also a talented photographer who first picked up a camera at the age of eight. His work is exhibited in Hege Academic Commons on campus through May. With proceeds from sales of his photography and that of other artists, Larry plans to help fund a scholarship for a student from eastern Greensboro, where he grew up. A Dean's List and Honors Program student, Larry was an outfielder on Guilford's baseball team. He is a graduate of Dudley High School and the son of Val and Larry McMillian.

ALUMNI SPEAKER

Mark Edwards '90 is the Chief Deputy Secretary of the N.C. Department of Administration, overseeing the state's catalog of real property, managing the State Property Office, the State Construction Office, State Facilities Management and the State Parking Office and DOA's Human Resources Office. He is a member of the Department's Executive Team, advising the Secretary on matters involving the General Assembly, Council of State and media.

Prior to joining DOA, Mark served as the Assistant Commissioner at the North Carolina Department of Insurance as well as the Public Affairs and Advocacy Officer for the Consulate of Canada in Raleigh. He operated his own public affairs and political consulting company and held various positions within a legislative and political intelligence firm. A native of Charlotte, Mark earned a degree in Political Science at Guilford and is the father of Avery Edwards '23.
